

Something Else to Remember

What Doesn't Get Noticed in the Heteropatriarchal Hegemonic Discourse - or - Cherchez la Grandmère

An Affair to Remember is the story of three people:
two on shipboard, and one on the land.
The two, by the close, encounter, at the end
of their separate trials.
And the one lives on in her legacy
of miracles made of lace.

The story's hinge has been the visit with Nicolo's grand mama, her tete-a-tete with Terry.
There! Have you seen? Deborah touch her own face with her hand, absently, grazing her lips.
Have you seen her from the silver pot
pour for the grandmother tea?

This old one calls out depths in the young, makes them know who they are, how they long that life
should have some meaning. Calls it love.
